

JUST BUZZIN'

As the music department has really gone out for contest in a big way this year, there will be a great number of students participating in contest work. A large group of trios, sextets, quartets, solos, and other ensembles will compete April 9 and 10 in the preliminary music contest at Ogden. Beginning Friday evening, the contest will last all through the next day. Since there are so many competing, Boone certainly will come home with a lot of first places.

"Did you make the debating team?"
"N-n-no, t-they s-said I wasn't t-t-tall enough."

Franklin K. Biery and his Hammond organ entertained the senior high Tuesday, March 23. Mr. Biery played several well-known selections and led the students in singing old favorites of 1928. The audience watched an imaginary circus parade while Mr. Biery described it on the organ. Besides playing, he also explained and demonstrated the operation of the Hammond Organ.

Mr. McLeran: "Who defeated the Philistines?"
Jim Lawless: "Sorry, I don't follow the minor leagues."

A small girl was boasting of the skill she had acquired at summer camp.
"And I suppose you learned to swim like a fish," her aunt remarked.
"Oh, better," the girl replied.
"Is that possible?"
"Sure," she scoffed. "I can swim on my back."

Two sophomores are the newest additions to Boone High, Maurice Herrigan, coming from Mason City, and Marlene Sesker, from Napier. Welcome!

What if...
Mr. Heyen drove a car instead of a bicycle?
Mr. McLeran and Mr. Norris didn't wear flashy sport shirts?
Mr. Shadle's lecture room windows were ever washed?

What's the good of seeing ourselves as others see us- We wouldn't believe our eyes!

Little Abbey, full of life,
Stabbed her father with a letter knife.
Her nursemaid said, "Now Abigail,
You shouldn't open Mama's male."

Ruth was riding on my motor bike
On the seat in back of me;
I hit a bump at 65,
And rode on Ruthlessly.

Golf Begins

Eleven boys appeared at the first meeting of Boone High's golf squad at 3:30 March 23. They were: freshmen, Freddy Vitt and Bob Appenzeller; sophomores, Jerry Johnston, Don Rogan, and Gerald Smith; juniors, David Fisher, Denny Collis, 'Chuck' Gruenig, Stan Olander, and Denny Martin; and senior, Bill Curran. More boys were expected to turn out for the first practice March 29. The first meet will be April 20, and eight meets are scheduled for the season.

Costumes Spark Contest Plays

Senior high students were entertained by the contest plays at an assembly on Wednesday, March 31. During the second hour an assembly, consisting of those two plays, 'Ile' and 'The Six Queens of Henry VIII,' was presented.

One of the chief characteristics and the funniest feature of the plays was the costuming. Dean Canakes, 'slicked up' in a King Henry outfit consisting of a pair of green velvet bloomer shorts worn over tan tights with a waistcoat of velvet and lace amused the audience. His hat with the large plume added a great deal to the effect. Surrounding the king were his six queens: Vera Lindahl, Karen Finley, Gracia Conard, JoAnn Quantz, Bonnie Carter, and Marilyn Du Bois, who, too, were dressed for the occasion. Some of the costumes worn by these girls were very elaborate consisting of long dresses or robes and sparkling crowns of jewels. Mike Bell, as the butler, wore short pants, long, black socks, and a white silk shirt.

In the other play, 'Ile,' Everett Hickman played his role in a tough-looking sea captain's outfit. The other sailors: John Daehler, Tom Sandell, and Rock Severson, appeared in sailors' slickers. Jeanette Stotts looks her 'real crazy' part in the appropriate color of black.

All the fun (and work) in putting on a play, one-act or three-act, doesn't come in the acting. There is much to be said for costuming. Ask anyone who has made his own costume for a play or has worked on the costume crew.

Awards Given In Assembly

Coaches presented basketball and swimming letters for the 1953-54 season at an assembly in the auditorium Thursday, March 18. Those receiving boys' varsity letters were: Jack Becker, Denny Collis, Dave Gustafson, Ronnie Lind, Mike Logsdon, Merrill Peterson, Bill Ross, Joe Smith, Dave Fisher and Kenny Sparks. Managers' letters were awarded to Jim Brannon and Dick Smith.

There were 10 sophomore letter winners: Wally Arringdale, Bob Barry, Larry Bergloff, Richard Byerly, Gary Grabau, Bob Harder, Jim Manriquez, Jay Peterson, Don Schroeder, and Jim Lawless.

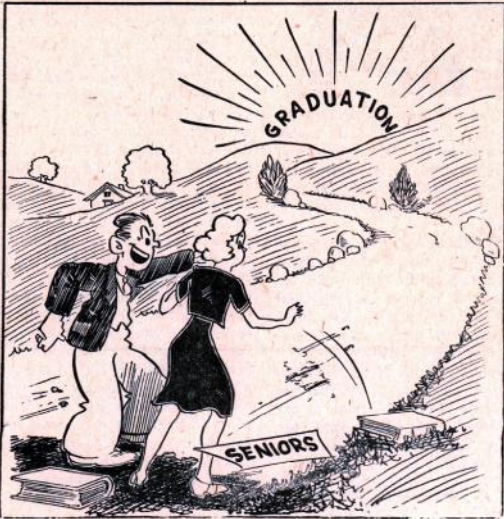

The Treadorettes receiving letters were: Bonnie Reid, Sondra Hall, Mary Courter, Joan Cornelius, Romey Chance, Joanne Huffman, Janet Musser, Ann Clausen, and Doris Jacobson. Marilyn Du Bois was given a manager's letter.

Four swimming letters were presented at the assembly. The ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades were represented, one boy from each class. Those awarded letters were: David Bender, Tom Reed, Larry Sovereign, and Dave Frazier.

Juniors! Don't forget to register your partners for the Prom by April 2! Next week the junior college students will have a chance to register theirs, so register now and pay that extra dollar if you're bringing someone outside the junior or senior class.

Your Paddle's Showing!

As of March 29, students will no longer roam the halls all by themselves; they will be accompanied by pretty little, bright-colored paddles. To avoid unnecessary loitering, a student may be questioned about his presence in the halls if his paddles aren't showing! Paddles will replace the yellow admits.

Much to the users' advantage, the paddles 'are not to be used at anytime as a disciplinary instrument.'

Each teacher has two paddles, one to permit the student to go only on the particular floor. Study hall and library supervisors have been given additional paddles. A list will be sent to the supervisor by the teacher taking a student from library, so that the student has no need to go to the library at all.

Of course illness always enters into the situation. But in cases of illness, the students will go to their lockers first and then to the office. The paddle will be left in the principal's office and be returned by a runner to the room from which it was sent.

All band, orchestra, Scroll advertising, co-op, and vocational agriculture students, upon returning to the building before the bell has rung, are to wait in the balcony of the gym.

The paddle for the third floor is colored blue; the second floor one is white; the first floor is red; and the basement one is orange. A striped paddle will excuse anyone to go on any floor.

Little Jack Horner sat in a corner,
And carved a design on his chair;
And then thought the teacher a terrible creature
Because she seemed to care.

Ticket Sales For 'The Robe' Begin April 12

J.C. Co-eds Gone 'Hobo'

What is it? You might well have asked this question if you had been passing the Y.W.C.A. at about 8:15 Tuesday night, March 23, as the last 'hobo' wandered in. The Junior College Y-Coeds were having a 'hobo' party. One of the members really took the order to come dressed as a 'hobo' to heart, as the picture in this year's Scroll will show. Dan Doherty, a photographer for the Scroll, took two pictures of the group. Those in charge of the recreation for the night were: Joan Hiltz, Delores Coffey, Joyce Roberts, and Janet Main. The group played traveling bingo, charades, and musical chairs, and competed in a relay. Gladys Mowrer and Mary Williams were in charge of refreshments.

The next meeting will be a pot luck supper at 6:30 April 13.

Mary has a little swing,
It isn't hard to find;
Everywhere that Mary goes
The swing is right behind.

Boy and Girl of the Week

The ninth grade of Boone Junior High are pleased to announce the engagement of their English teacher, Miss Ulferts, to Mr. Honeck, also of Boone Junior High.

Though no definite plans have been announced, rumors of plans for the wedding are going around. Usually unreliable sources have said a gym wedding is being planned. 'A' students of the bride and groom will serve at attendants, and it has been reported that the work of the students has improved greatly with this new incentive. In fact, the competition is so strong in English that a special essay contest to choose the 'winners' has become necessary.

Our spies report that the wedding gown has not been chosen, but that the bride will carry a satin-covered civics book, a gift from the groom. Something old and new will be provided by an out-moded yellow pass slip signed by all the teachers and by one of the new traveling paddles. For something borrowed, what could be more appropriate for a teacher at the end of the month than a dollar bill? 'Something blue' will be furnished by the entire ninth grade when they realize that they are losing their chief source of gossip.

A reception has been planned to immediately follow the wedding. The B-club, with their wide experience in serving at the junior high athletic banquets, will probably serve the dainty refreshments that they are famous for.

In planning this event, the question has arisen as to whether the occasion could be considered as one of Boone's 180 school days. Mr. Seaton has written to the state superintendent for a ruling.

Mistress Mary, quite contrary,
You know what I will say;
But much to my woe, you're determined to go
Down the south stairs the wrong way;

Minutes of Last Teachers' Meeting

March 23, 1954. Meeting called to order by the honorable Mr. Moore. Secretary's minutes read and approved. Mr. McCartan read following poem:

When I left college to coach plays
I looked ahead to brilliant days;
Of drama's showing joy and doom,
And Hamlet clothed in deepest gloom.

And fairest Helen launching fleets
But not to pleading for old sheets!

Leading the agenda of new business, Mr. Moore pointed out the indifferent attitude of the students, and gave the following suggestions for improving the morale of the student body. Instead of the bleak, well-lit, well-patrolled halls, he proposed that the halls be lighted with soft blue lights; that the time between classes be increased to ten minutes; that there be no teachers patrolling the halls; and that lattice trellises entwined with climbing roses be placed over each door. The issue was unanimously passed after a second, and the following discussion of the problem by Miss Thornberg, "I wholeheartedly agree with Mr. Moore; what this school needs is a romantic atmosphere!"

Due to numerous complaints of aching necks and sore backs because of poor sleeping facilities, Mrs. Ick requested that Mr. Tillson's private 'cage' be vacated of desks and books and changed into a sleeping lounge for students who got little sleep the night before while trying to get their education.

Miss Johnson and Miss Vanderbeck suggested that a rubber ball on a rubber band should be tied to the new paddles so that the students who pace the halls can be learning something useful. During the violent argument which ensued over the issue, Mr. Moore had the sergeant at arms bodily throw out Mr. Norris for causing undue disturbance and noise. The issue is to be voted on tomorrow.

Movies Improved

B.H.S. movie-goers will be glad to hear that Mr. Lovin has refused the offer to be manager of a big Chicago movie theater. "Because," says Lovin, "with our new wide screen here in my room at school and equipment for 3-D and cinemscope, I just can't afford to leave, no matter how attractive the offers. Also, my girls are showing a definite interest in the mechanics of motion pictures, and I want them to have the best chances available."

Improvements in the set-up for geography movies will be made in time for the opening of school next fall. There will be a popcorn stand outside 212, run by Mr. Moore, for hungry students and new love-seats for steady couples. Standing room only customers (Mrs. Martin's classes) will have better accommodations.

"I just love shows," said Mrs. Martin as she herded in her students, stuck her gum under one of the plush seats, and ducked a flaming arrow from the first of a series of 3-D.

Boone High School patrons and students were surprised and pleased last week to learn that the new addition to the high school, promised for 1955, had been completed a full year ahead of schedule.

The building, which occupies a site slightly west of the original plan, is a ranch type structure with red roof and black and yellow walls.

Some viewers have been inclined to complain that they had been led to expect a larger, more elaborate structure. The construction company has answers for them, however. "Any room looks smaller till it's occupied," they say. To those who want a more luxurious appearance they also have answers. "Elegant simplicity is what we are striving for," they say. "And look at the modern features: picture windows; low, modern lines. No need for fire escapes in this building."

It was pointed out, too, that by not quite filling the space allotted under the original plan, the builders left room for landscaping around the sides. In fact, a patio may be built to accommodate the classes, shops, storage, cafeteria, etc., originally planned to go inside the building.

But the big problem in everyone's mind seems to be: where will they put the penthouse?

It's been reported that Mr. Heyen was summoned into mayor's court to pay a $10 fine for speeding. The officer reported that he was going 35 in a 20-mile zone. He was also fined $1 for not having a reflector on the rear fender. Charges of operating a bicycle while preoccupied were dropped for lack of evidence.

Pep Club Tilt Stirs Faculty

If students have intercepted cold looks between men and women teachers; if teachers have looked extra haggard and sounded hoarse; if Mr. Moore has looked 'beat,' it is probably due to the Great Pep Club Controversy.

Last week a rumor was circulated that the Pep Club, controlled for years by women faculty members and but recently turned over to a man, was to be given again to female control next year. Unwilling to relinquish their recently-won honor, the men called a caucus and laid plans for defense. The women, smarting under the humiliation of losing the 'prize' last year, fought back, storming the caucus room and engaging their opponents in an impromptu 'debate.' Attempts of Bumble 'B' reporters to get information as to what happened met with an iron curtain of censorship. However, school authorities assure us that the meeting had no connection with Mr. Jones' black eye and Mr. Crozier's broken nose, which were in evidence the next day. The Bumble 'B' always a champion of the underdog, attempted to aid the cause of the men by interviewing the outstanding applicants. Each gave his reason for his candidacy:

Mr. Peer: "I just like girls."
Mr. Scholl: "I'm tired of being connected with a minor activity; athletics for me!"

Mr. Fitzgerald: "With only Scroll and speech, I haven't enough to keep me busy; Pep Club would just about round out my schedule."

Coaches Stutzman, Gillespie, McLeran: "We've always wished we had control over the real rulers of our squads. Give them to us!"

Mr. Cunningham: "I can handle electricity, so why not women?"

Mr. Crozier: "My favorite colors are red and green, especially on pretty girls."

Juke Box Mania

From the radio room a new program has been developed for the faculty members of Boone High. It is a request program called 'Top Tunes for Tippy Teachers.' On the schedule for our first program, there are many requests from the faculty. Among them are:

'Wanted': Miss Linderblood.
'From the Vine Came the Grapes': Mr. Shadle.
'Young at Heart': Miss Ulferts.
'That's Football': Mr. McLeran.
'Deadwood Stage': Mr. Fitzgerald.
'To Be Alone': Miss Pagel.
'Oh My Papa': Mr. Brookhart.
'Baby, Baby, Baby': Mr. Norris.
'Typewriter Song': Miss Ealy.
'Broke, Barefoot and Starry-eyed': Miss Johnson.
'Sunday Driving': Mr. Roloff.
'Just Like Old Times': Mr. Lamb.
'Crazy Mixed-up Song': Mr. Jones.
'I Wanta Be Evil': Mr. Abbott.

Open Letter To Students

Students:
I've been noticing that most of you who are in the library don't take full advantage of it.

For instance, we have three or four beautiful new sets of encyclopedias, and I have yet to see any of them taken home! Feel free at any time to help yourselves to one. There's no need to sign out; we trust you.

The same goes for the periodicals in the room just off my office. Do go in and take home a magazine! Some of them are five or six years old and not replaceable, but we want you to enjoy them.

Don't you like art? Nobody has clipped out a picture for some time. This is your library!

I'm disappointed in the condition of the books, too. I enjoy a book most when I'm eating a cream puff or a jelly doughnut. Try it. The next reader can pry the pages apart.

So don't feel limited in your use of the library. Come in any time and make yourself at home.

Insincerely yours,
Mr. Tillson

Hartley Gains Free Vacation

We thought he could add, but...
Mr. Hartley, B.H.S. bookkeeping expert, has applied to the school board for a two years' leave of absence. Mr. Hartley has not informed local residents of his plans, but he has been heard inquiring about the climate and living conditions in and around Alcatraz, California. The plans were made after a recent visit to Mr. Hartley of a new acquaintance from the Internal Revenue department. Rumor links the visit with a breakdown of the adding machine in the bookkeeping department when Mr. Hartley was using it to make out a personal statement around March 15 a few years ago.

The school board is attempting to secure a temporary teacher to fill in during Mr. Hartley's leave of absence.

We all wish Mr. Hartley a fine expense-paid vacation and hope to see him back soon if his behavior is satisfactory.

Did any of you hear the commotion in Mr. Moore's office the other morning? Don't be alarmed; it was just Mr. Abbott pleading with Mr. Moore to give him an 'excused' tardy slip.

Wonder why it's so quiet around here? Maybe it's because everyone's jaws are tired!

Faculty News Items

A group of students overheard Mr. Jones the other day bragging about the new house he built. He told that his house was all modern and it had very few nails in it. The reason few nails were used is that the door knobs are all stuck with gum which poor Mrs. Jones spends much of her time chewing. The Joneses buy thousands of boxes of kleenex to fill the cracks in the walls. Mrs. Jones has it easy because she only sweeps the floors once a day. She must wait until Mr. Jones comes home at night to take the place of the broom that holds up the kitchen roof. Mr. Jones made all their furniture. When they eat supper they hold the table on their laps because he forgot to make legs for it!

It's off to the rock pile for Mrs. Jones this summer! She breaks the stones for their fireplaces. Ya, fireplaces, two of them! Not too rough work for the little lady!

In case you're wondering if there really is a house like this the answer is No! In fact Mr. Jones' new house is very nice and the reason we made fun of it is because today is April Fool's Day!

For the welfare of the girls and boys of this school, Mrs. Williams pleads with them not to ever set foot inside a motel. She tells us that you are bound to be eaten whole, while sleeping, by the termites. If you are interested in improving your posture, though, there couldn't be a better solution than sleeping on boards. Those who are nature lovers and enjoy sleeping under the stars will be pleased, because for the convenience of the guests the motel has provided unintentional picture windows without glass. Often the guests at the motel complain because the management purchases second rate burlap sacks for bedding instead of the genuine string ones. Mrs. Williams will agree that the housekeeping is excellent in the motel, as the guests make a special effort to tidy up the beds every three months. All in all Mrs. Williams hopes that she has put some influence in your mind on the unsanitary conditions of motels. In case you're wondering why Mrs. Williams, the proud owner of one of the above described motels, has said all these things, it is because today is April Fool's Day!

I wonder if Roxanne Rose had a nice time at the show, March 16, with Denny Hora?

Who Is She?

The sweet looking little girl in the picture above was two years old when it was taken. She still has her hazel eyes, brown hair, and is now five feet four inches tall.

Her older brother, William, is monopolizing their hobby horse. Strange as it may seem in this picture he looks like she looks today.

The sports she enjoys are golfing and fishing. She is an ardent sports fan and attends all football and basketball games here and out of town.

Her hobby is trying out new recipes and they usually turn out very successfully.

In a special interview with Miss Lovell, Boone High's science teacher for the seventh and eighth grades, she stated flatly that science is harmful and a waste of time to think about it, much less to study it. She can also be quoted as saying that science will eventually destroy the world and we should try to refrain from experimenting with it. There is one fact not known to many students in school and that is that she is dreadfully afraid of snakes or any other monster that isn't human. In her opinion they are all very harmful and meaningless, and she advises everybody to stay as far away from them as possible. This also applies to sea shells which she considers just a pile of junk and all plant life, such as flowers and trees are weeds that should be destroyed forever.

In case you can't understand why Miss Lovell has said all these things about science—this is April Fool's Day!

Who Is He?

The darling, sweet, chubby, baby boy in the above picture is mostly in ninth grade and lives in the south part of town. He is five feet nine inches tall, has some blonde curly hair and blue eyes, and wears glasses. Although only as a spectator, he enjoys watching sports very much. His favorite school subjects are social studies and science, and his favorite television programs are 'Your Are There' and 'Our Miss Brooks.' Fried chicken is his favorite food—lots of it!

If you care for a later picture there is one in the showcase at the rear of the assembly. He's the one with all that bushy hair.

He played on Boone's undefeated football team and was captain of the 1920 Iowa basketball team and was also named all-state guard.

Look elsewhere on this page to find the names of these two toddlers.

Stop banging doors on lockers!
Get back against the walls!
It's far from sweet to walk the beat
On duty in the halls.
We're not opposed to romance;
We once were young, you know,
But must all the bells bring long farewells
Like Juliet and Romeo?

What happened to Dick Ray's face? Did he have a little accident with the razor?

Facts that have come to light for all Fools' Day...

Mrs. Woodard has notified all students, "No book fines will be collected for the next five years."

Mrs. Henry was overheard to say while telephoning, "I ain't got none of them spuds like you et the other evenin'."

Everyone better go down to the Coca-Cola company tonight after school and receive his free Coke. April Fool!

There will be one extra week of school this year from June 3 to June 10, to make up for the many days of loafing that we have had.

Take notice, girls, of that tall, thin, and handsome Dick Ray.

All the girls in Mrs. Brunner's first-hour class have been getting 'A's' lately.

Have you noticed how polite and nice Mike Herman has been around the girls the last few weeks?

It was decided by the superintendent that 30 minutes of every class will be set aside for visiting and gum-chewing because the students are getting too smart.

Look at the new bracelet Betty McElyea is sporting.
