

Vocal Department to Give Concert April 24

Just Buzzin'

The Prom, which will be held on May 4, is progressing, we hear, through the work of various committees.

The question is, especially for the seniors: 'What will be the theme?'

The Boone County Music Festival was held April 17, at 8:00 p.m. in the new high school gym in Boxholm.

A number of students from schools all over Boone County entered in this event.

Both band and chorus participated in the festival; however, only the mixed chorus from Boone attended.

Mr. Robert Pfaltzgraff, of Perry, was the director of the mammoth chorus. It is hoped that this can become an annual event in the future.

The physical education classes will view a movie on April 24 during their regular class periods. Cancer will be the subject of the film to be shown.

Mrs. Hartley will serve on the State Planning Committee of the State Department of Public Instruction, May 18 and 19, at the State Office Building in Des Moines.

She was one of only two public school teachers chosen to serve on the committee.

The purpose of the committee was to prepare outlined material which will be used by county superintendents and administrators in developing their county institute programs for 1956.

Kruse Takes College Quiz

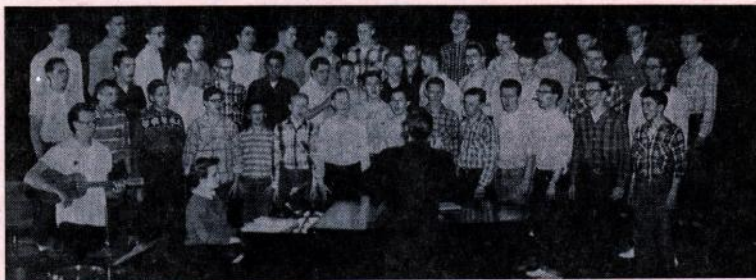

Darrell Kruse, Boone High senior, is among the 27 finalists invited to take part in the sixth annual George F. Baker Trust scholarship competition at Grinnell college during the coming weekend. Grinnell is one of 12 private colleges in the country to which grants are made for these awards.

All 27 are high school seniors, recommended by their teachers or principals on the basis of superior academic ability, moral character, and demonstration of 'an unusual capacity for leadership.' Almost half their number can be expected to receive awards ranging up to $1,000 for the next academic year, on the basis of need and qualifications.

The finalists were invited to be guests of the college during the weekend of April 7, with special testing and interviews on Saturday. During Saturday morning they had written examinations lasting about three hours, designed to test both their knowledge and their ability to express themselves. In the afternoon there were interviews with faculty members.

Last year nine young men were chosen as Baker scholars and received awards ranging up to $800 for this year, while several other finalists were awarded other scholarships and work assistance. The scholarships are renewable so long as the recipients maintain a stated grade average and give evidence of developing the qualities for which they were selected.

New Administration Set-up for Coming Year

A new arrangement will be evident in the administration set-up for the school year, 1956-1957. The positions of principal, Mr. Moore; assistant principal, Mr. Abbott; Junior High Boys' Counselor, Mr. Lovin; Junior High Girls' Counselor, Miss Thornburgh; Senior High Boys' Counselor, Mr. Roloff; Senior High Girls' Counselor, Miss Ealy; will constitute the main departments and their heads. Their respective duties are as follows:

DUTIES OF ADMINISTRATIVE PERSONNEL

I. The Work of the Principal:

The principal, as head of the school, will work in matter of every pupil's adjustment to the school. While much of his time will be devoted to working through the teachers, he still is to be considered as one to whom students, parents, and teachers may go directly if they feel the desire to do so.

In addition to supervision and administration of the school, the principal is usually called upon in cases of an unusual nature, particularly where the home may be involved. Conferences when suspension of a student is involved should be between principal, parents, assistant principal, and counselor.

The principal will be in charge of the activities and program of the entire school.

II. The Work of the Assistant Principal:

- Teach one class.
- In charge of student activities, conduct, and attendance.
- Investigating college scholarship opportunities and assisting students in securing them.
- Conferring with all seniors who plan to go on to college.
- Determining whether or not subjects a student selects will meet his requirements for college or a job after graduation.
- Assist principal in construction of all student programs (academic and extra-curricular).
- Director of testing—grades 7-12.
- Placement service.
- Scholastic Society sponsor.
- Serve as principal of the school in the absence of the principal.

III. The Work of the Counselors:

The junior and senior high counselors are probably thought of as disciplinary officers, even though teachers do not think so. The reason for teachers sometimes referring conduct problems to the counselors are two-fold:

- A third party can analyze a problem strongly on its merits, for he is not connected with it.
- Counselors are experienced in guidance work. The counselors' real purpose is, accordingly, not to punish, but to analyze the situation so that the student sees the true significance of his conduct. In these conferences the counselor is sympathetic with the pupil's viewpoint.

The counselors will visit with the student during the regular scheduled conference period, during one of their study periods, or after school in regard to their school progress, vocational plans, or about any problems which are preventing them from doing their best work or form enjoying their school year to its fullest. They will plan their program of school subjects, based on their ability and their plans for the future. All matters of attendance, scholastic progress, matters of conduct, curriculum adjustments, quitting school are handled by the counseling department.

There will be one boys' and one girls' counselor for junior high, and there will be one boys' and one girls' counselor for senior high. Their duties are as follows:

- Teach two classes.
- Supervise one lunch hour.
- Attendance officer.
- Registrar.
- Guidance counselor—includes discipline.
- Student council sponsor. Senior high boys' counselor.
- Student handbook sponsor. Senior high girls' counselor.
- Student congress sponsor. Junior high boys' counselor.
- The three annual junior high programs. Junior high cheerleaders. Junior high girls' counselor.
- Group guidance and social program in junior high.

Perry Vocal Students Entertain Sr. High

Opening with the production of scenes from 'Oklahoma,' the Perry High School Choir, under the direction of Mr. Robert Pfaltzgraff, presented an assembly for senior high on Thursday, April 12.

The program was divided into three parts. The first of these was 'Scenes from Oklahoma' which opened with 'Oh, What a Beautiful Morning' and went on to 'Everything's Up to Date in Kansas City,' 'The Surry with the Fringe on Top,' 'People Will Say We're in Love,' and 'Out of My Dreams and Into Your Arms.' They closed with 'Oklahoma.'

The second part of the program consisted of small groups—a girls' trio, boys' quartet, double boys' quartet, and a madrigal group—each performing with one or two selections.

The 86-voice robed choir completed the program with some numbers on a more serious note.

Student chairman, Robert Sellers, introduced the Rev. Russell Otto of the Presbyterian Church. His message was 'What Makes Things Tick.'

Junior High Essay Winners Announced

The Student Congress sponsored an essay contest in junior high. The essays were written by all students in their English classes. The judges, Louise Linderblood, Zoe Stevens, and Arvid Stock judged them for content, originality, and interesting phrasing. They didn't know who wrote the essays, since numbers instead of names were used to identify the writer.

Prizes of $2.00 will be given on Award Day in May to the firsts, and $1.00 for the seconds in each grade.

Here are the results of the contest:

Seventh Grade:

- 1st place—'Too Close for Comfort,' by James Mylenbusch.
2nd place—'Escape from the Communists,' by Kay Hyatt.

Eighth Grade:

- 1st place—'Arizona Dance,' by Susanne Frohardt.

Too Close for Comfort

By James Mylenbusch (first place, seventh grade)

We were asleep in our tents on a cool summer's night. The fresh fish that we had caught the previous morning were smoking over a small fire. The fire, after sputtering and hissing, finally went out. The moon arose from behind the mountains like a big, pale yellow ball casting mysterious shadows about the camp.

Suddenly a large black bear emerged from some small bushes near by, sniffed the air, and advanced toward the fish. Evidently he had smelled the fish and was going to make a meal of them.

After eating the fish, he smacked his lips and decided to investigate the camp to see if he could find any more of this delicious food. While poking his nose into our garbage heap, he knocked over some tin cans with a resounding crash. Jack, a very light sleeper, awoke with a start. Nudging his companion he yelled, "There's a bear!"

Soon the whole camp was alive with shouting voices. The bear made a bee line for the nearest bushes and ran until he could run no more.

As for the boys, they were putting more wood on the fire and discussing this frightful incident. In the morning the boys decided that they would not smoke any more fish over an open fire at night.

Arizona Dance

By Susanne Frohardt (first place, eighth grade)

Dances are usually thought of as waltz, square, or jitterbug. When we were in Arizona last summer, I found out that the dance is a religious ceremony for the Hopi Indian.

When we stopped for the night at Winslow, Arizona, we discovered we were just in time for the Hopi snake dance the next day. This was unbelievable luck for a family from Iowa, because the Hopi priests are the only ones who know the exact date of the ceremony. The first nine days of their dances are held in secret.

I went out, drowsy-eyed, the next morning and couldn't understand why the caravan started so early just to go 75 miles. I soon learned the answer. The dance was held at sundown, and we barely made it on time. We bounced and jogged over hills, and oozed through mud all day in the reservation. No wonder the Indian walks!

At last we had to climb to the top of a mesa to get to the pottery-brown square where the dance was going to be held. I felt like a foreigner, because there were only about 50 white people there and almost 2,000 Indians. I was crowded in on all sides, and I tried to look like one of the solemn-faced Indians around me.

A weird chant signaled the start of the dance and sent a tingle up my spine. The dancers looked like one of those terrible nightmares you seem to stay in forever. They had different colored paint smeared over their bodies and were decorated with shells, animal skins, feathers, and beads.

They first stomped their feet on the ground to tell the gods the dance was ready to begin. I hate to even see a snake, so when the Indian dancers who were called 'carriers' put the snakes in their mouths, I was glad I was able to stand on the sidelines and just watch. The dancers carry the snakes to the four directions, so the prayers will go to the north, south, east, and west.

The 'hugger,' whose funny name fits him perfectly, really hugs the carrier and tries to distract the snakes. Some of the snakes were real rattlesnakes.

As the saying goes, 'last but not least,' is the 'gatherer,' who gathers snakes that get away. Then the dance ends when the snakes are sprinkled with sacred cornmeal and thrown off the mesa to carry prayers to the gods.

My parents told me to remember that this snake dance means as much to the Hopis as Thanksgiving means to us. The snake dance helped me to understand the first Americans a little better.

To Be First Just Once

By Jim Moore (first place, ninth grade)

This year we have a split lunch period with everyone running back and forth from lunch period to class. My goal was to be the first in line to see if the servings were larger, the food warmer, the milk colder, the cooks happier, and the teachers friendlier. First of all, I knew I had to be ahead of Stephen Krasean, a big husky boy who moves down the hall like the Pacific Northwestern. Also I had to watch out for Bud Munson, a boy who weaves through the pack like Jerry Reichow on a sneak play. Then too, I had to be ahead of 'Chuck' McGriff, a boy who goes down the hall like Carl (Sugar) Cain on a fast break. These were just a few of the students I had to beat to the lunch room.

Spring Fever A Tall Tale

What is it, this thing called Spring Fever? Everyone knows that it's not a fever, at least not the kind that registers on a thermometer, but is a virus, a bacteria, a fungus, or a just plain germ? Probably none of them, but it certainly is contagious. Even the teachers are susceptible. In fact, the question is does it spread from the students to the teachers, or from the teachers to the students?

One of its form is the sigh, a longing look out the window, and an urge to play hooky for the day (or for longer). It is the way a girl looks at a boy and the way he looks back at her. It's the spring flowers and the leaves on the trees, a boy and girl walking along hand in hand, and a pretty girl in a bright new spring dress.

You know that the teachers aren't immune because you've seen the way they open all the windows and look out as if they felt like jumping out of them or trying to fly.

Did you ever notice how a girl looks in the spring? If you're a boy maybe you thought how nice she looked and wondered why you'd never noticed her before. It really seems as though girls believe that old saying about how in spring a young man's 'fancy turns to thoughts of love,' and decide to make the most of the season. Although that kind of thoughts are uppermost in a girl's mind she seemingly decides that spring is the time to catch 'him' and sets to work. And who's saying that's wrong? It seems right somehow that girls should look their prettiest in the spring when the earth also looks its best. So, girls, ready, get set, go! Catch him before the next girl does. And boys, fall for it, please, just to go along with the season and the old saying.

Tom: What's your son going to be when he gets out of school?
Sam: Very, very old.

Letter to son in prison: "Dear son, we were proud to see your story on Dragnet last night. All the neighbors were too."

Laugh and the class laughs with you. But you stay after school alone.

A senior is one who has completed his four-year walk around the building.

That day I had a substitute teacher so I could get a fast start. When the bell rang I was off like a flash. I hustled down the hall and passed Mr. Abbott's office, which was empty, and hurried on. There standing right in front of me was Mrs. Bullock, who was on hall duty. I then slowed my pace down to a walk but stayed ahead of the hungry mob. I made the turn and hurried down the ramp on my way to the lunch room. When I thought I had it made, 30 students came storming out of a side door with musical instruments. I soon found out that the music students get out early.

Next year I'm going to play a violin!

Young'uns, how'd you like to have the real low-down on the Declaration of Independence? This is the way it really happened.

You see, my granddaddy was so far ahead of his time and such a respected citizen, he was the first man President Washington invited to the Continental Congress. Washington, himself, sure 'nuff, asked Grandpop (even if he didn't invite the others). So Grandpop was elected to the committee that wrote up the Declaration. He really did most of the work but, natchery, he was too modest to admit it, so he let Mr. Jefferson take all the credit. When it came to signing it, well, I told ya Granddaddy was ahead of his time. Why, he'd already invented the fountain pen, but he never told anyone else about it. That's why they didn't get around to making them for a while. Of course, they had ink then, but Grandpop's was a special kind; it was invisible. When his turn came to sign it, he just signed with the pen he had.

You guessed it; it was filled with his own brand of ink. It didn't fade for awhile so no one noticed it 'til it was too late. But you know, if you look at it closely you can see the space where Grandpop signed!

Letters to Miss Love Lorn

Dear Miss Lorn:

I'm five feet four and my girl friend is six one. My problem is that she leans her elbow on my head and it's very uncomfortable. I don't want to stop going with her so what can I do?

'Shorty.'

Dear 'Shorty':

Dear Miss Lorn:

I am 25 and am told I'm quite nice looking. How about a date?

Dear Loverboy:

BUMBLE 'B'

Published bi-weekly by the students of Boone High School.

Rates: Activity ticket plus 10 cents, or 15 cents a copy.

'As Time Drifts By' Is Theme for Dolphins

Once again the Dolphin Club of the high school will present its annual exhibition of synchronized swimming in the Boone High pool on the nights of Friday, Saturday, and Monday, April 20, 21, and 23 at 8:00 p.m.

This year the show becomes a review of some of the prominent periods in the history of America, and bears the title 'As Time Drifts By.' Opening the show will be the Indians, portrayed by Pat Curran, Barbara Nelson, and Linda Boyd in an impressionistic study of Indian rituals of prayer and war. An entirely different approach to the idea of prayer is presented by Sue Grant, Koreen Ballard, and Joyce Larson in 'Pilgrim's Prayer.'

Reaching into the colonial period, we find Kay Loveless, Janet Guenther, Judy Eastberg, Emily Grabau, Carol Ross, and Karen Dennis in a minuet-like water ballet. Moving westward with the pioneers, 'Spud' Toot, 'Spike' Harvey, 'Tex' Curran, and 'Spider' Nelson drop in at the Gold Nugget Saloon after a hard day at the mine and find 'Draw Two' Rans, 'Ivory' Wiemer, and 'Lulu' Eklund.

Judy Eastberg and Janet Guenther demonstrate the shy, coy flirtations of the 1890's as Kay Loveless and Karen Dennis give chase in 'Picnic Pursuit.' Everyone knows about the giddy foolishness of the roaring twenties with its Charleston and the Flappers represented by Elaine Blaess, Elna Reedholm, Sonja Reedholm, Dorothy Reedholm, and Elaine Blaess present the 'Peekaboo Blues.'

About 1950 the nearly forgotten square dance once again gained in popularity and it has since become one of the most commonly seen forms of dancing. Here we demonstrate the square dance, substituting some of the simple stunts of synchronized swimming for the more familiar figures of the traditional dance. Dorothy Reedholm, Karen Toot, Mary Wiemer, and Joan Harvey are the girls and Laurel Rans, Mary Jo McLeod, Wanda Eklund, and Betsy Lorentzen are the 'boys.' Nothing is more prominent in our world today than the teen-ager and one of the common types of entertainment for the teen-ager is the slumber party. Kay Wiley, Linda Boyd, Joan Harvey, Judy Harvey, Emily Grabau, and Mary Jo McLeod are the 'Sleepy Slumberers' at the end of the evening, after the gossip and pillow fights are over. Who knows what tomorrow will bring? Betsy Lorentzen, Louise Lorentzen, Kay Wiley, Sharon Garvey, and Janet Carter bring the uncertainty of the future to our show.

In the past few years it has become a tradition to close the performance with a number done entirely in candlelight. This year another innovation has been added to traditional finale, which uses the club's namesake, the Dolphin.

It will be noticed that the production will be repeated three times this year instead of the usual two. Last year many were turned away at the door because of the limited seating capacity at the pool. Tickets are available from all members of the club. The prices are: elementary school children, 25 cents; junior and senior high students, 35 cents; and adults, 65c. Persons holding advance sale tickets will be seated before any tickets are sold at the door. Student activity tickets will not be honored since the Dolphin Club is separate from the activity fund.

The Dolphins would like to remind their friends who plan to attend that the pool area is kept at a warm temperature for the comfort of the swimmers, and that it is quite humid in the room. Summer-weight clothes will be more comfortable than heavier ones.

Tennis Team Defeated

Coach Hokanson's tennis team probably met their toughest opponent last Friday in a match with the defending Central Iowa Conference champions, Marshalltown. Boone was held scoreless throughout the matches to give the 'Cats an easy 7-0 victory. The Toreadors traveled to Marshalltown last night to meet the 'Cats again.

Roger Lowe, C.I.C. singles champion, beat Darrell Trulin, 6-0, 6-3. Bobcat Mel Williams beat Bob Musser, 6-0, 6-0. Bruce Williams was defeated by Lee Abrahamson, 6-0, 6-3. 'Chuck' Musser was a 6-4, 6-1 victim of Joe Austin, and Jim Lawless was defeated 6-2, 6-3 by Dick Mahle.

Trulin and Tom Miller lost in doubles play to Lowe and Austin, 6-0, 6-0, and Bob Musser and Bruce Williams were defeated by Williams and Abrahamson, 6-1, 6-2.

The complete schedule of the remaining games for the Toreadors is:

- April 27: Fort Dodge, here.
- May 3: Ames, there.
- May 7: Fort Dodge, there.
- May 9: Des Moines Tech, here.
- May 12: District Tournament.
- May 17: Ames, here.

Boone Scores Track Win

By scoring 103 points, Boone was the victor in a triangular track meet at Fort Dodge, Friday, April 13. Webster City totaled 67 points and Fort Dodge finished with 53.

Jim Manriquez was declared winner in the 220-yard dash and the broad jump besides being Boone's anchor man in the 880 and mile relay.

Junior hurdler Don Stevens won both hurdle contests—the high hurdles in :16.6 and the low obstacles in :22.7. Don was also first man in the mile relay.

Jerry Lind finished second in the 100-yard dash and anchored Boone a victory in the 440-yard relay and the 880.

Improvements in the field events were exhibited by the cindermen as Marland Davis won the discus with an 120-foot 8-inch throw. Doug Dodd threw the shot 39 feet 3 inches for a first and a 171-foot 1-inch football throw gave Jack Robertson a victory.

In the two-mile relay competition, Toreadors Jerry Wright, Rich Byerly, Dave Gibbs, and Mick Ferry crossed the wire in 9:02.5 for another victory for Boone. Every relay race was won by Boone with the exception of the medley relay, which was won by Webster City. Boone finished second.

J. Peterson placed second in both the hurdle races, third in the high jump, and helped in the 440-yard dash relay victory.

Dave Dearinger and Dick Rinker finished second and fourth respectively in the mile run.

Larry Meyers pole vaulted 9 feet 4 inches which was good for third while Dick Byerly turned in a 17-foot 6½-inch effort in the broad jump for third place honors.

Bill Hull turned in a .57.3 performance in the 440-yard dash for a second and Don Nystrom finished fourth in the high jump event.

Improving in ten events Boone was able to score victories in 11 of 18 events.

Golf Victory

In their first meet of the season, the Boone High golf team defeated Marshalltown, 171 to 175. Bob Appenzeller, Boone's number one golfer, was low scorer with a 38. Fred Vitt and Brian Knezevich scored 44's and Jim Taylor had a score of 45. Jerry Johnstone's 48 was not low enough to qualify in the top four scores which are added for the final outcome.

Next Friday, the Toreador linksmen will host Roosevelt of Des Moines on the Boone course.

Toreador tracksters scored a 97-71 win over Lincoln of Des Moines, April 17 in a dual meet at Goepfinger Field. Weather conditions hampered both teams.

The meet went as follows:

Boy and Girl Of the Week

Our beautiful ninth grade girl of the week is in Mr. Roloff's homeroom. She is active in many things including church work, president of homeroom, Y-Teens, and orchestra, besides being an honor student. Among her favorites are: color, blue; food, shrimp; sport, basketball; hobby, music; subject, home-making; and boy, Glenn Ohlmann. Her birthday falls on July 31, when she will be 15 years old. She intends to further her education at Iowa University and be a home economist. Her favorite tv. program is 'I Love Lucy' and her songs are 'The Great Pretender' and 'Forever Darling.' She makes her home at 110 Tama and her telephone number is 1929-J. You will find this girl's name elsewhere on this page if you have not already guessed who it is.

The popular freshman boy this week was born in Toledo, Iowa, and now resides at 1510 Boone Street. If anyone is interested in calling him, his telephone number is 2668. Before coming to Boone High he went to St. Patrick's in Tama and Sacred Heart school in Boone. Our subject is out for track currently, but basketball and football rank tops. While listening to his favorite record, 'I Was the One,' by Elvis Presley, or watching Disneyland, he enjoys eating Pizza and drinking 7-Up. Orange and gray, science, and dancing are other favorites. Radio, cars, and photography are his main hobbies.

Other clues: he is five feet nine inches tall, and has blue eyes and brown hair.

He is not sure where he is going to college but he hopes to take engineering. If you haven't guessed look elsewhere on this page.

What's this we hear about some of the girls eating over six pancakes at the 'Y' the other morning? They must have been good!

Why doesn't Mr. McIntyre take a hint and stop giving so many tests?

Have you had the chance to wear the dunce hat in general science?

Y-TEENS

The junior high Y.W.C.A. groups have been busy lately, both planning and carrying out activities.

Among the past activities of the seventh grade were a talk by Mrs. Klinkifus on complexion care and a pancake breakfast. The only positive future plan is a swimming party to take place later in the year.

The eighth grade Y-Teen members are anticipating a visit from a hair stylist, who will give them advice on hair styles. They are also planning on having an overnight camping trip to the Y.W.C.A. camp.

The ninth grade members got up early on April 10 to attend a 7 o'clock breakfast. They all agree it was worth the effort. A style show will be presented by Junior Fashions Teen Shop for the benefit of the ninth grade members and also the Hi-Tri group.

Escape from Communists

By Kay Hyatt (second place, seventh grade)

This is the true story of two people from Latvia, a small country in Europe, and the hardships they endured before coming to America.

Their names are Avid and Ireida Zagers. They had lived in Latvia all of their lives and had, many times, been cold and hungry.

Avid attended Riga University in Riga, Latvia, where he took courses which enabled him to become a very intelligent and highly skilled engineer.

The Communists, during World War II, needed intelligent engineers to help them build up their defenses. They would come into free Latvia, kidnap the person or persons they wanted, and go back into Communist Latvia.

One day Ireida was across the street from their apartment, visiting a neighbor, and Avid was at work. When he came home, he was warned by one of his neighbors that the Communists were waiting in his apartment for him. He and Ireida fled from Latvia. A year later they came to the United States, where they are living now.
