“A Penny for Your Thoughts!”

This is an expression much used by winsome wooers, and generally means that “he” is groping blindly to ascertain what “she” is thinking about. As though any mere man could find out anything about the eternal feminine!

The young man had much better be giving “Thoughts to His Pennies.” By doing so, by heeding the old maxim, “Take care of the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves,” he will come much nearer approaching “her” ideal of what a desirable husband should be. No better agency was ever devised for cultivating the thrift habit than the establishment of a bank account and staying right with it. No young man of limited means should ever contemplate matrimony without first accumulating a sufficient bank account. This bank especially appreciates the accounts of young men of this class.

College Clothes That Radiate the Real College Atmosphere

You can't fool the college man on style. He's quick to approve real "collegiate" clothes—clothes that have been designed for him after the best ideas gained from close touch with University men.

Adler Collegians are "collegiate" right down to the smallest details. Our showing of these good clothes will convince you that Adler leads in style achievement.

Come in now and inspect the Sand-dune Tans, Arab Grays — in collegiate models that truly deserve the name. See the newest note in style direct from the campus—Wedgeback models—and then select your suit from our complete stock. Fabric choices have never been greater—values you'll find hard to duplicate await you here.

High school boys find this a congenial young men's store.

of the Professor, induced him to wear clothing answering the description of the thief. When the Burgomaster (Robert Anderson) saw McSpindle so attired he had him arrested immediately. Free from the ever-watchfulness of the Professor, Dick and Ned made a more intensive study of the prize "two lips" they had discovered, belonging to Katinka (Verlyn Forbes) and Christina (Fern Peterson), charming Dutch maidens. Aunt Anna (Dorothy Honnold) having proved McSpindle's innocence received the affection she had longed for, and the curtain fell, leaving us with the prospect of a triple wedding.

The villagers and American students were portrayed by the remaining glee club members. The operetta was very successfully given and enjoyed by all who saw it.

changed sides this year and showed that he could argue the negative as well as he used to talk on the affirmative.

Joseph Irwin has always been famed for arguing the wrong side of anything and making his hearers believe that he is right. He also was a veteran of the 1927 debate battles.

But perhaps most important of all has been the power behind the teams. The intelligent guidance of Mr. Thorngren has developed in his men not only logical working methods but also individuality of presentation.

A BUDDING DIPLOMAT

Mother: "Willie, what are you doing, teaching the parrot to swear?"

Ned Graul: "No, mother, I'm just telling him what he must not say."

"How yo' all getting along with yo' rithmetic, Sam?"

"Well, I done learned to add the aughts all right, but de figgers bother me a lot."

Fritz Oldenburg: "Why is it that a red-haired woman always marries a very meek man?"

Fay Morgan: "She doesn't. He just gets that way."

Naida Valentine. "I'm going home to mother, and I never want to see you again."

Pussy Wilson: "Too late, your mother just went home to grandmother last night."

"Pat, you should be more careful about pulling your shades down. I saw you kissing your wife last night."

"Faith, Mike, the joke's on you. I wasn't home last night."

"Chuck" North: "Where did you get the new hat?"

Leonard Nelson: "It's a present from my wife. I came home from the club early last night, and found it on the table."

Miss Turner: "I'm afraid those shoes would make me look too young."

Walt G.: "Oh there's no danger of that, madam."

Mistress: "It is very ungrateful of you to leave. Haven't we always treated you as one of the family?"

Maid. "Yes, that is why I am leaving."

For two days they had a Swedish clerk in one of the shoe stores on the Avenue. He might have been there yet if the boss hadn't caught him in the act of throwing a brand new pair of shoes in the wastebasket.

"Hey, what's the idea of throwing those shoes away?"

"Dey bane no good. I try dem on six faller already, and dey don't fit no one."

"This may hurt you a little," said the absent-minded dentist as he handed the patient his bill.

"Abie, what you mean by playing mit matches on de sidewalk? Come right away in de store and play mit em."

Del Bennett: "When Hector fell out of the window, did he hurt himself very much?"

Harry Jacobsen: "Naw, he had on his light fall overcoat."

Naida Valentine: "Ireland should be the richest country in the world."

Leona Meyers. "Why is that?"

Naida Valentine: "Her capital has been 'Dublin' for many years."

Bill Davies had not had his new suit long before the coat began to show creases. "You ought to have a coat-hanger, Bill," said his lady friend. A few days later she asked if the coat hanger was satisfactory. "It's all right," grumbled Bill, "but the wood hurts my shoulder blades and the hook shoves my hat over my eyes."

Hector Warren was saying his prayers in a very low voice.

"I can't hear you, dear," his mother whispered.

"Wasn't talking to you," replied Hector.

He: "You look like a sensible girl. Let's get married."

She: "Nothing doing. I'm just as sensible as I look."

Schultz: "Art thinks I'm a wit."

Harry: "Well, he is half right."
