is there a communication gap? these days a lot of people think that parents, teachers, and students are really splitting up. not us—the yearbook staff. we've decided to put it all together.

but to prove this point one must examine the school, the city, and of course the people throughout years 1971-72.

afro hairdo's, weird styles of clothing, and speedy cars, all are part of our school.

all of these arouse comment and anxiety on the part of school officials and parents. they are constantly asking why are kids like this?

how many times have people asked this question?
has one ever thought that maybe the students of boone high are trying to communicate to others or maybe it is a way to find themselves?

we communicate in many different ways, through our sports, clubs, assemblies, and our type of music in school. communication means a lot to us and we feel we can succeed.

bhs has been our school through the good times and the bad. we may do things differently and have many 'wild' ideas, but we are taking our chances. to find ways to communicate and preserve them are our goals. we learn everyday from our friends, teachers, parents, brothers and sisters just how to get across to people, and we feel we are doing it right now!

homecoming

miss lynette jensen was crowned 1971 homecoming queen on friday, october 1 at the homecoming pep assembly. members of her court included cindy leining, lynn hook, terri riordan, and frances davis.

1971's homecoming festivities were a great success with the bonfire and guest speaker mike newbold on thursday, september 30. friday, larry blaker was guest speaker and larry briley served as master of ceremonies of the pep assembly where the crowning took place.

boone high homecoming events came to a glowing end by defeating urbandale, 36-0, with queen lynette and her court reigning over the class of '72's last homecoming game.

the christmas dance was held december 23, 1971, from 9 to 12. the dance was turnabout, which meant that the girls invite the boys.

mrs. brandmeyer was this year's sponsor and she did a great job. the main colors were bright blue, gorgeous green, and american beauty pink. the theme this year was 'santa's workshop.' debbie westberg and julie ward were in charge of all the dances except prom. their main working schedules were wednesdays 7 to 9, and then they worked on the weekends because there wasn't enough time during school. the sidewalls had elves working on toys. there was no center structure, and the bandstand section had a santa standing 12 to 14 feet high with a globe in one hand and in the other hand letters saying 'merry christmas'. the entrance was made up of reindeer standing in their stalls. there also was a three-dimensional tree. the refreshment stand had six foot toy soldiers and the table resembled a drum.
