•DOING his usual stunts to get attention, Adam Hoppus ('98) props up in the hallways in an unusual way. Adam was involved in drama, music, speech and the cartoon club. He found that his creativity surfaced even more when he could act really silly. His career in marketing and art appeared to be in force with the job he held during high school at a T-shirt screen printing business.

GETTING ATTENTION... ...THE OLD FASHIONED WAY

Who said you had to always act grown up? It must be some boring adult.

"The best part of high school was the chance to do something really dumb and still be able to face your friends," junior Greg Piklapp said.

The senior class tried to get attention many different ways. One of the best was stealing a cow mascot from Pella Christian.

"We started the year by buying an old car after collecting money from seniors. We made a Death Mobile car to look like the one from the movie Animal House," senior Chad Christeson said.

Sometimes classes also took a younger approach. The advanced speech class practiced interpretive reading. Each student selected a children's story book to read out loud to the class. They had to mark the script so inflections could be used.

"I worked really hard on this, but found the material was a little over my head," senior Nick Paulson said.

TECHIES ALLOWED HERE

During the summer, the school received a new facelift and the students approved.

The new computer lab opened at the beginning of the year. This lab was opened at 7:30 a.m. and closed at 4:30 p.m.

"Doing my work on the computer allows me the chance to razzle dazzle my teachers with my computer knowledge," senior Kolby Rosengreen said.

Students were not the only ones taking an interest in technology.

Staff members found it easier to record grades and keep attendance.

"It helps me keep my grades in order and is easier to type recommendations for students," English teacher Mrs. Jane Dupuis said.

The staff took classes and inservice sessions dealing with different programs. Mr. Dodd, Mrs. Haugland and Mrs. Howe had students working on mPower after taking a Saturday class in it.

"I thought it was fun to work on a speech using mPower, but it was hard," junior Becky Colvin said.

Using the Mac Lab, Randy Palmer ('98) types his word processing document.

You grew up. Your parents are worried. They feel disconnectd. Is it all right for them to spy (snoop) on you by going through your stuff?

"They can ask, disapprove, yell, but we have our right to privacy."

-MYSTIQUE ESCHLIMAN, '99

"I'd really much rather have them disconnected than freaked."

-JERROD GRANT '98

"It's not right for them to spy, but they'll find out anyway because people feel the need to tell my parents everything."

85th Volume Theme: Copied but Never Duplicated

Printed by Jostens in Visalia, California

The 82 member staff of the 1997-98 Scroll produced the 192 pages which sold for $26.00 the first week and $30.00 after. The book was printed on 100# enamel paper.

The cover was designed by committee members. It was printed as a four-color litho coat matte. Palatino, Helvetica and Symbol were the main fonts throughout the book.

Design programs included Pagemaker 5.0, Adobe Photoshop 3.0 and Typestyler.

The staff received the following awards:

- Iowa High School Press Association: Third Place for Fall Yearbook Contest
- Distinguished Merit Award for whole yearbook contest
- JEA National Conference: Tenth Place

copied BUT NEVER duplicated

The Toreadors put the pride of the school on the line...and in plenty of time. •BY NATHAN MERRILL

So why is it important to understand that each year can never be duplicated? Have you ever seen the movie Groundhog Day? Can you imagine how boring life was for Bill Murray doing the same thing everyday? Every day was an exact duplicate for him. It was so bad he ran his truck over a cliff to try to end it all.

Unfortunately, some people get into a rut by living and thinking the same things day in and day out. They approach each day as if it were a carbon copy of the last. When they complain, however, that they seem to be copying the motions over and over, they have no one to blame but themselves.

Each person has responsibility to himself to make his life memorable.

"I never know what to do with all the stuff I have to do. I know that I need to be more organized, but sometimes, I just want to have fun and not worry about what I need to do next," senior Julie Barkmeier said.

What more is there to say? Look over this book month by month. Look for the differences from the past years. The year may be copied...but never duplicated. We will always have the school year, but it will never be the same.

↑ AFTER PLAYING in a band competition at Adventureland, Becca Halbmaier ('98), Dan Moeller ('99), Eric Duffee ('99) and Ryan Walrod ('98) relax on the log ride. Part of the fun of belonging to different organizations was the fieldtrips.

⇒ PLAYING "THESPIAN JEOPARDY," Katherine Luna ('01), Lindsay Shannon ('00) and Marci Bennet ('00), survive their initiation into Thespians. Drama offered students chances to perform in a variety of ways.

↓ MARCHING IN DISGUISE, band member, Nicole Hill ('98) dresses as a clown during the halftime performance at the football game on Halloween night. Most band members wore costumes when they performed at the half of the Jefferson-Scranton/Paton-Churdan game.

⇒ NEARLY GENETIC duplicates, twin sisters Kristen and Annie Krumhart share not only looks, but a lot of fond memories.

TRY COPYING THIS

Just for the fun of it, students found interesting ways to spend their time. Even though some actions are the same every year, the personalities could never be duplicated.

- MAKING a crazy face, Sarah Wikert ('99) takes time from cheering to flash a smile and victory sign.
- Even though she's a big fan, Rae Edmiston ('98) uses time at a swim meet to read her book for English.
- True to form, the senior Powderpuff cheerleaders entertain the crowd.

copied BUT NEVER the same again

It's about getting out there and taking a big, fat, juicy bite out of life.

•BY RYAN WALROD

YOU KNOW EXACTLY where you want to spend the rest of your life...not in high school. For now, it is just what you would imagine would happen in a small midwestern school. They make movies about these days. Even though it's great to look back on the memories, it's just as good to know they will never be duplicated.

↓ Getting into her groove, Jenny Mikesell ('00) dances at a Sunday night Party of Five get-together.
