Leadership takes over

Long season builds up teamwork and talent

Even though the seniors graduated, they returned for one more season with the 'Dors before heading into the future.

TRADITIONS: Because the team knew it was important to pull together they set several traditions. They always tried to eat together after the games. This allowed them to talk about the best and worst part of the game. "I enjoyed eating with the team after home games because sometimes it is nice to just hang out with the girls and not be so serious," senior Haylee Burma said.

RIVALRIES: Over the years, teams always found certain opponents were more fun to defeat than others. If there weren't any rivalries, the fans were sure to start something over the course of the season. "Ames was by far my personal rival that I really just wanted to beat every time we played against them," senior Kayla Behling said.

PRACTICES: The softball team started the season with intense practices. The skills they worked on were varied and intense. Once the season started, however, the practices were rare. The team played 3-4 games a week during the summer so the practices that the team might have had were important to the success of the team. "Every practice we had to get down to business to improve our problems that we develop over the course of the season," junior Nicole Danna said.

MEMORIES: Many memories were created over the course of the season. "My favorite memory was when I sprinted all the way over to the fence and reached way over, caught the ball, then fell over the fence," senior Liz Kelly said.

•READY to make any move necessary to complete a play, Kayla Behling stands with full attention on the game. Kayla played softball all four years while in senior high.

•PITCHING the ball in the strike zone, Haylee Burma ('07) handles the batter with ease. The team had four pitchers ready for play during the season.

Leadership takes over

Long season builds up teamwork and talent

Long practices and countless games, the baseball season was full of it all. Above all, it was full of fun on and off the field.

Toughest Game: Many of the games were in the sweltering heat of summer, and when paired with high caliber opponents, Little Hawkeye Conference games were extremely tough.

"The toughest game was the second game of the Knoxville double-header, because they were the best team in the conference, and we beat them," '08 junior Tyler Sunstrom said.

Best Field: While traveling around the state, the Treadors saw their fair share of nice fields.

"Pella Christian's field was the nicest. It was Central College's field and basically awesome," '07 senior Taylor Nystrom said.

Off-Field Moment: With all of the focus on the field, the players kept it interesting with practical jokes and rough housing.

"I remember when we were on the bus riding home from the game and Dave Eastlund ('06) popped up over the seat and put Josh Larson ('07) in a sleeper hold. Then Josh started to snore. Larson then woke up freaked out, but he was ok," '07 senior Dane Titman said.

Traditions: Baseball is a game of traditions and day-to-day rituals for preparation. It consists of routines, superstitions, and good luck charms. "Personally, I liked it when we warmed up before the game by playing a game called Flip. It warms up the reflexes and hand-eye coordination and it is flippin' awesome," '07 senior Jason Noelck said.

•THROWING someone out at first, second baseman Luke Ullestead ('06) shows off his cannon. Ullestead was part of the graduating senior leadership.

•DIVING back to first, Nate Zantow ('06) shows he is not afraid to get dirty. Zantow was always a solid competitive threat when stealing bases.

Field challenges players

Coaching offers new game plans for team

Team pride helped the Toreador football team get ready for a challenging season. Players offered support for each other and saw improvement as the season progressed.

PASSING: The passing game was a huge advantage for the Toreadors during the season. The team was led by veteran signal caller, Bret Houston. Bret passed for more than 3,000 yard in his Boone High career. With a solid core of receivers, Boone was always a threat for a big play. "We went into every game with the confidence needed to make the plays," Brett said.

DEFENSE: There has always been the saying that "Defense wins championships." The offense definitely helped to put fans in the stands. The crowds rivaled any town with the support they gave their 'Dors. Key defensive stops helped put the Toreadors in the win column.

SCHEDULE: The varsity season was a season of ups and downs. The 'Dors started the season riling up four consecutive wins. The next four games would be more of a challenge. That four game stretch, included a showdown with eventual Class 3A Champion, Humboldt. Boone ended up dropping those four game to even their record at four wins and four losses. The season came to an end with a 33-10 loss to Nevada in front of the home crowd. That final win provided hope that the seniors would positively remember their days as a Toreador football player.

•THROWING a lethal combination, Dustin Russell ('07) and Paul Zinnel ('09) bring down opponent. The advantage of the working on the team was that underclassmen such as sophomore Zinnel felt confident when working with upperclassmen.

Success equals spirit

Games require organized direction for fun

When the ten was down and the fans quiet, one thing that was sure, the cheerleaders added spirit.

Experience: Cheerleading for the year came as a bit of a surprise for most of the older girls. The lack of previous experience seemed to pose a problem for the upcoming competition. The girls worked hard so they would be able to compete.

"It was hard at first to get used to all of the new stunt groups, mainly because they had no idea what they were doing," junior Typhanny Mitchell said.

Competition: The squad, however, soon adapted to each other and began a steady progression. It was also decided that the squad would not compete. This was due mostly in part to the stress involved in the preparation of a competition routine. "It was hard at first, because all of us really wanted to go. Although afterwards, a lot of us were grateful that we didn't because it was a lot more relaxing," junior Mary Jo Martin said.

Stunting: Despite the fact that the girls didn't end up competing, this did not stop them from stunting. "We went a little crazy this year, we had great stunt groups that were willing to try anything. I think it will really help the girls out for next year," senior Christina Hammer said.

Future: Many of the seniors were anxious to see how the squad turns out next year, and will be very excited to see the improvements. Despite the previous struggles with adapting to the new squad, the girls had a great season and were very hopeful for the succeeding squad.

•GETTING ready to hand out a roundie to a varsity football player, Aleesha Hopkins ('07) waits for the next player. Parents for varsity players served breakfast for all home games.

Water challenges girls

Swim team trains summer and fall seasons

While most swimmers were hitting the city pool and getting a tan, the girls' swim team swam laps indoors. They practiced morning and afternoon to get into top shape.

Practices: Most days, swimmers did three to five sets of 2x100 stroke, 4x25 under water or 16x50 free in a certain amount of time. Certain practices involved working on starts and turns. "Practices were hard but I think we had a great season" sophomore Heather Wailes said.

Home Meets: Generally swimmers had pasta dinners the night before their home meet. They did this to build team as well as add carbs to their diet. "Just before the meet begins, our coaches take us out into the hallway for a pep talk. When we walk back into the pool we have a song playing, called 'Zombie Nation.' As soon as we get in the pool area, we huddle in front of the bleachers and do some cheers to get pumped up. The cheers always get me ready to swim," freshman Alexa Pomerank said.

Homecoming: During the week of Homecoming, swimmers did a lot of different things to show their school spirit. "One day we had a Co-ed meet with the boys' swim team and did crazy relays. Another day we wore tights and made up synchronized swimming routines," junior Kelli Bass said.

Superstitions: There were many superstitions for a variety of things. Each of the swimmers had her own. "The biggest superstition we have is that we must have our dinners every week. Everyone has their own little superstition, like having a specific food item, or must listen to a certain song," sophomore Maggie Milller said.

•GETTING ready for an away meet, Leesa Tjernagel ('08) and Molly Lehman ('08) warm up. Swimmers had to warm up before every meet in order to keep their muscles loose.

•WHILE competing in one of her favorite events, Kelli Bass ('08) takes off to face the competition. Some practices stressed take-off and turns so the swimmers were ready in competition.

Fast-paced training pays

Runners hit the fields and run in packs

Long practices and countless games, the baseball season was full of it all. Above all, it was full of fun on and off the field.

Courses: Knoxville was the hardest course because of the massive hills and cold weather. "The hills and cold rain made Knoxville the hardest. I was trying to get done as fast as I could, so my time was average," senior Sean O'Neal said.

Workouts: The hardest workouts were track workouts because the runners were used to running distance and this was to work on speed. They had to run on the track in order to be ready. "I hate track workouts because we run around in circles and we have to sprint, which I also hate," freshman Mackenzie Madden said.

New coaches: The new coaches, Traci Havlik and Gary Achenbach, created challenging workouts but runners always had fun at practice and meets. "Cross country was really fun with Coach Havlik. She ran all of the workouts with us and was always joking around," freshman Brianna Boehm said.

State: Matt Kuster and Logan Gonzales qualified for State as individuals but the varsity boys made it as a team. "This is the first time since 1991 that we had these qualifications. I was excited for them to qualify for State. They deserved the right to represent their school at the state cross country meet," Coach Gary Achenbach said.

Setting goals for year

Seasoned team helps the young players adjust

Taking advantage of the friendships and the team commitment, volleyball players set out to play their best.

HITTING: A main focus of the season was hitting. Putting the ball down for a kill was a good way to end a rally and get the crowd to cheer during an intense game. "We worked hard on hitting. During practice we did several hitting drills that helped our team out a lot," junior Katie Aspengren said.

BLOCKING The team struggled with blocking throughout the season but improved as it went on. "A lot of people think that blocking is just jumping with your arms up. But really, your timing has to be right, you need to close the block and communicate with the other girl, line up the hitter, and hold your arms tight. Sometimes it really sucked, but it was worth the feeling of getting that awesome block," junior Allyson Ladd said.

DIGGING: Passing the ball to keep it in play after a hard hit from the other team was a big task for the back row. The team practiced this every night in order to really be good at it. "Digging up a hard hit from the other team is an awesome feeling. It's definitely a lot of hard work though even if it's worth it," sophomore Megan Beste said.

SERVING: Probably the easiest point a player could earn would be to score an ace. The girls practiced on serving zones to aim for specific spots or players on the court. A few players even perfected the jump serve. "I had my off days when I served but overall I felt pretty good about my serving. I definitely improved on placing the ball where there were open spots," junior Chelsea Larson said.

•WAITING for the next play, Lindsay Greiner ('08) and Emily Hansen ('07) concentrate on the opponent's serve. S erve-receive was a big focus during the season.

•SHOWING their school spirit, some senior boys paint their chests for Pack the House night. The crowd supported the team the entire season with group cheers and enthusiasm.

New teams appear

Perseverance pays off with new soccer season

Some might say the students knew what they wanted and they went after it. Even though there was controversy and opposition, soccer made its debut.

This was the first year for soccer at Boone High School. After taking a look at the season, already it was a huge success with both boys and girls. Three teams consisted of a JV and Varsity boys team and a Varsity girls team.

CHANGES: Since this was the first year of ever having soccer as a BHS organized sport, there was much to learn. The students needed to become a little more familiar with the competitiveness and differences from other sports. Even fans weren't quite sure what to do or where to sit. "I didn't know what was going on at first but I wanted to go watch my sister play. It was really exciting to see everything happening," senior Brandi Heiner said.

PRACTICES: While practices weren't easy, players knew there was a reason for the pressure. The teams trained hard and eventually it paid off. "Our first games were disasters. We didn't know what we were doing when it came to a real game. I expect everything to improve as we go into the next season," freshman Andrew Orey said.

SUCCESS: In what might be termed a bit of a surprise, the girls team defeated Carroll Kuemper, 5-4, in the first entry ever into state tournament qualification play. "The girls played very well. I think our strong finish at the end of the season gave the girls the confidence they needed. We played extremely aggressively," new Coach Patrick O'Brien said.

Hoops challenge players

Changes and practice help with new season

A second new basketball coach made his appearance for the winter season. In addition to the boys' coach, the girls found new challenges presented by a new coach.

CHANGE: The season started out the new drills and a different expectation as the girls basketball team hit the floor. Not only did the team have some young players, but they also had a new coach. "We knew that we were going to have some changes but we didn't know how much it would get us into the game," junior Tamara Larson said.

YOUNG TEAM: Because there were only two seniors on the team, the younger players had to step up and play varsity for the first time. The seniors had to take the role of leader and yet they had to work hard to hold their positions on the team. "We had tough practices. There were times that no one knew where they stood because so many of the players were so good," senior Breana Heiner said.

RECORDS: Even though the season record still needed some work, the overall attitude of the team was positive. Some games showed outstanding play on the part of the players. Sophomore Lindsey Greiner set a single game rebounding record with 18 twice in the season. Senior Danielle Ballard showed her tough drive and experience at each game. By the end of the season, she set the school career record for blocked shots. She blocked 129 shots at play. "The team gave everything a coach would want his first year at a school. We knew that we had an opportunity to make change and grow with the experience," junior Kelli Bass said.

•SHAKING hands at the end of the game, seniors Danielle Ballard and Breana Heiner show good sportsmanship. Danielle and Breana were the only seniors who participated in basketball this year.

•TRYING to break away from the competition, Hanna Worrall ('09) defends the ball from her opponent. Underclassmen played a major role in the varsity team's success.

Good shots take patience

New coaches and returning players help season

A major adjustment at the beginning of the year was new coaching strategies and expectations. Players and coaches had to practice patience.

CHANGE: Toreador basketball did pretty well for themselves despite starting the season with a new head coach. The team made it two games into Sub-state. The team started off the season playing with a new head coach. Coach Joel Danner was a new teacher at the Middle School and took over the head coaching position.

"I enjoyed my first season as the Boys Head Coach and I'm looking forward to next season," Coach Danner said.

RECORD: The team finished with a record of 8 wins and 14 losses. They did much better in conference play by finishing at 6 wins and 9 losses. "We really started to get our act together when we started Little Hawkeye Conference play," junior Bradly Booton said.

SUBSTATE: Another feat the team accomplished was playing in Sub-State. They won the first game in Sub-State against Fort Dodge but lost the next one against Ankeny. "Winning our first Substate game in so long was awesome," senior Logan Gonzales said.

Overall the Toreadors improved greatly from the season before. With a new head coach at the helm it looked like Toreador basketball could improve even more next season.

CHEERING on their hometown Toreadors, the student section on White-Out Night packs the house for a game against Newton. Student organizers advertised a few weeks before the game for students to come to the White-Out Night game.

GRABBING a rebound out of the air, Brandon Kew ('08) blocks out the other team to snag the ball. Kew and Bryant Knox ('08) were a great asset for the team because of their height and rebounding skills.

Moving at the right time

Coach returns to help young team get started

Commitment and dedicated practices helped the wrestlers meet the goals they set for the year. Despite a tougher District, the team still placed one wrestler at State.

CHANGES: The wrestling season was one of the more radical seasons that Boone High had experienced in a while. With the change in coaches, came a change in the number of participants as well. The two star wrestlers were the only seniors on the team. They led this young team along with Coach Christianson to a lot of victories. "We didn't expect Coach C. to return to the team but it was awesome to have him teaching us again," senior Matt Kuster said.

SEASON: Despite the changes in the style of wrestling and coaching, the boys felt that they had a pretty good season. "I think that our wrestling team this year was all right for the most part. We had a lot of young kids and some first time wrestlers," junior Mike Crown said.

EXPERIENCE: By having such a young team, the experience level wasn't quite as high as most would have wanted. Many were surprised when the younger kids really stepped it up during the season. "I think a lot of the guys did really well for the number of first timers. We didn't do as well as I wanted, but I was impressed with some of the talent our team had this year," junior David Darby said.

A lot of the boys felt that the team will improve tremendously by next year. Most of the boys will still be here, but the only difference seemed to be that they will have more experience.

"I think we'll do better than this year, just because we'll have an older team. I can hardly wait to start training again," freshman Brogan Austin said.

The season threw most people for a loop, but they finished well and hoped to continue the excellence next year.

Swimmers make goals

Strict discipline helps swimmers set records

Swimmers found strength from each other, strong coaching and tough practices.

TEAM: The boys' swim season started off in the winter with seven returning seniors on the team. A few new promising freshman along with other veteran swimmers also returned to make a promising team. The sense of team was developed on a daily basis. The coaches believed that if the boys could work together, they had greater strength for competition.

TRADITIONS: Many traditions have lived on through the years for the boys' team. Some of the traditions came about by chance, others were passed down from alumni. No matter what, if there was a tradition that meant good luck, no one was ready to give it up. "Over winter break, we had practices where we were trying to get goggles stuck on the flags. The reward was getting to miss practice," senior Ryan Fliss said.

PRACTICES: Swimming practices could be argued as some of the hardest practices of all the sports. The team was tested each day and as a result they were guaranteed to get the boys into shape for meets. "Depending on when we had meets, some practices would be harder than others. They were mostly all really tiring though," senior Eric Theil said.

MEMORIES: Special times helped to create memories. These were created both as a team and individually. "My best memory is when I placed third in the 200 IM and 100 Free at state, and when I received All-American status in the 200 IM and All-American consideration in the 100 Free," senior Sean Hagen said.

Net hits equal victories

Tennis team continues tradition of excellence

Boys' tennis faced their foes throughout the season with strength and confidence. This resulted from hard practice and strong coaching.

RECORDS: Since 1980 when Coach Jeff Wells arrived in Boone, the boys' tennis team has won 263 meets and lost only 78. They have also shut out the opponent 114 times and been shut out only 9 times. "When I heard those numbers, I knew that I wanted to play for Coach Wells. He really motivates us to work hard for the team," sophomore Austin Greco said.

WEATHER: In the 2006 season, Aaron Briley decided that it would be interesting to keep track of the weather at the meets. Each meet, he would write a comment about that day's weather. He continued this tradition during the 2007 season. One of his observations stated, "Clouds meandering thru the delectable blue sky. Hot enough to cause a tiger shark to sing."

COMPETITION: Both of the losses for the year came from teams that proved to have a successful season. Even though they didn't win state championships as he predicted, Coach Wells praised his players for the hard work during the season. "I think it is likely Valley will win the large school class state championship and Pella will be one of the favorites for the small class state championship. It would be a compliment to these Boone kids to be able to say their only two losses were to these teams," Coach Wells said.

SENIORS: Five seniors will be missed for their dependability and talent: Bryant Allen, Taylor Nystrom, Scott McCambridge, Sean Hagen and Anthony Greco.

•SCRAMBLING after the ball, Koby Pritchard ('08) plays hard and it paid off. Koby rated at 68.52% winning record in the three years he played for the home team.

•GETTING ready to serve a fire ball over the net, Anthony Greco ('07) uses all his strength. Anthony finished his tennis career in the top 20 All-Time Tennis Career Victory Ladder with 66.07% wins.

Season starts with pride

Players set goals and reach even higher

If one were to make predictions, they would probably expect some State qualifiers. The season resulted in that and more.

SEASON: Girls tennis started off with very high expectations during the spring season. With returning letterwinners, a successful season was a sure thing.

PRACTICES: With high standards to be met, the team set goals for the year. One of the most important things to hope for at the beginning of the season was daily practices after school. Early season experienced some problems due to weather. Some practices were cancelled. "Practices are a joke. We don't really do much. We have the most fun at meets," junior Anne Watkins said.

RIVALRIES: Some teams proved more challenging than others according to results from past years. Sometimes this resulted in the team working even harder for a victory. "One of our biggest rivals was Pella and we killed them 11-0 this year!" senior Amanda Plymale said.

TRADITIONS: In addition to the tradition of winning, the girls had many activities they included in the season.

"Allison and I go to the bathroom together. We also have breakfast before big meets and we go out to eat after victories!" sophomore Maggi Schutte said.

MEMORIES: With such a successful team and year, many memories were created during the season. "Beating Ft. Dodge as a team to go to State and not having anyone lose a set was great," junior Traci Moglestad said.

STATE: Boone traveled to Cedar Rapids with three entries in the class 2-A State Girls Tournament. Junior Mary Pat McMullan was seeded number 2 in singles. She placed second in State. Senior Allison Williams lost in consolation play the first day of play. Junior Traci Moglestad and sophomore Maggi Schutte played down to the wire and fourth in State play. In team play, Boone was edged out by Iowa City West 5-4.

Runners pace victories

Team sets goals to help season competition

Girls track season got off to a solid start and things only got better from that point on.

MEETS: The season set a grueling workout practice schedule for the girls choosing to go out for track. Not only did they have to work hard to get into shape, but they had to be ready for long nights with meets during the spring. "We had fun during the meets just talking and getting ready for the next event. We definitely supported everyone on the team throughout the entire season," senior Brittany Putzier said.

COACHES: Different coaches were assigned to events for the season. Mrs. Bass worked with the field events and Mrs. Kautman returned with strong workouts for the track events. "We learn so much from the coaches. They are there every day for us and we really appreciate the fact that they can motivate us even when we don't think we have a chance," junior Jess Kelly said.

FUTURE: The team had strength in senior Haylee Burma and Robin Cornelius leading the way. The one thing that everyone knew as the season ended was that there were many underclassmen whose talent would be back next year. State qualifiers helped each other during the season but also set the goal of continuing to work out during the off-season. "We have a lot going for us and we can hardly wait until next year. We will be awesome," junior Nicole Beer said.

STATE: A record number of events qualified for State. The fans showed up to support the competition for the boys and the girls competing at the spirited Drake stadium.

Boys knock off records

Runners hit track with dominance and strength

After a successful regular season, and taking the LHC conference title, the members of the boys' track squad hit the track and field at State.

RECORDS: Logan Gonzales, Clint Martin and the shuttle hurdle relay team smashed records. Logan set a new record in the 800 meter run with a time of 1:55.48. Clint topped the BHS 200 meter with a 22.12 performance. The shuttle hurdle relay team consisted of Logan Busch, Blake Campbell, Jordan Appenzeller and Nick Anderson set a school record of 59.01. Nick Anderson also ran high hurdles at Districts with a record of 14.84. "Our team knew what to expect from each other at any time in the race," junior Nick Anderson said.

FIELD EVENTS: The Boone team also had control of the field events. Clint Martin won the long jump at 21-8. Showing strong competition was Dillon Hilsabeck and Paul Zinnel in high jump. "We still have a lot to work on but the field events are definitely stronger," Dillon said.

TITLES: The road looked good for the Boone team titles. The team completed a sweep of the Boone Classic and Boone Invitational. This made a total of five team championships. In addition, for the first time in BHS track history, 18 athletes qualified in 16 different events at State. "I'm proud that these athletes always try to focus on doing their best," Coach Gary Achenbach said.

•RUNNING the distance with full strength, Matt Stone ('08), helps with the relay race. The coaches tried to use as many combinations as they could when putting teams together.

•TAKING off, Ben Bachman ('07) hits the competition with his toughest effort as Dillon Hilsabeck holds the blocks. The underclassmen found the support and encouragement from seniors was valuable to their success.
