On February 8, the student body will elect a king and queen to reign over the Homecoming festivities.

Traditionally a queen was elected by the basketball team. This year, by popular vote of the pep club, tradition will be changed, and a king and queen will be chosen by the entire student body. An attendant to king and queen will also be chosen. Senior girls will be eligible for queen and senior boys who are out for basketball will be eligible for king.

After voting on several suggested themes, students selected Night of Melody. This theme will be carried out in the decorations for the hall. Musical staffs, instruments, and notes will be featured as main decorations. The decorations committee has planned the decorations and will decorate for the day of the activities. Members of this committee are: Sue Cooper, chairman, Diane Kunz, Mary Jo Cady, Mary Ann Eddy, Jean Rinker, Jean Buss, Chris Miover, Vicki Strain, Bonnie Littleton, Mary Ann Davis.

Decorating the throne and planning for the presentation of the king and queen are in charge of the committee chairmaned by Linda Fitzgerald. Committee members are: Sandy Roberts, Kathy Havens, Donna Fitzgerald, Pat Pratt, Nancy Lonergan, Teddy Ann Vickrey, and Judy Cook.

Students Should Study, Not Goof

"High school students should study hard and not goof-off, stated Father Behrens in his recent visit to Sacred Heart. Superintendent of schools in the Sloux City diocese, Father came to visit each of the classrooms and to make some important remarks. He said "Thinking seriously about vocation should begin in high school; it will be too late after graduation." Father expressed his hope that all students would also give some thought to the religious life because today, more than ever, more priests, brothers, and sisters are needed.

Dr. Kussell Uvergsten Discusses Health Center, Mental Problems

Dr. Russell Dvergsten, a member of the staff of the Central Iowa Health Center at Ames, appeared as guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Home and School Association.

Initially, Mr. Dvergsten explained that financial backing of the clinic by Boone, Hamilton, and Story Counties makes possible the reduction of the cost of regular psychiatric office treatment of $20 an hour, to that of $1 per hour for clinical treatment. The work of the clinic, the speaker commented, is largely preventative rather than therapeutic.

Dr. Dvergsten then explained briefly the types of mental problems starting with the most seriously disturbed, the psychotics, who have completely lost touch with reality and can no longer distinguish between what is real and what is imaginary. These are primarily schizophrenics, (mostly men) and manic-depressives (mostly women) and some children who become severely disturbed.

A second less seriously disturbed group are the highly neurotic individuals who have a set pattern or routine which they must follow, and who become so upset when this routine is disturbed that they find it impossible to carry on their normal daily activities and duties.

The most common and least disturbing traits are those of the low, and who become so upset when this routine is disturbed that they find it impossible to carry on their normal daily activities and duties.

The most common and least disturbing traits are those of the overly conscientious housekeeper, the person who must have everything folded in a certain way, who must have all the ciothes facing in one direction in the closet, etc. Most people have some of these traits or show signs of disturbance at various times in their lives, but it is only when a person begins to exaggerate these symptoms or when the disturbances persist over an extended period of time that one should become concerned and seek help.

The problems of children, as Dr. Dvergsten pointed out, have been found to be largely a reflection of disturbance in the parents under nine years of age deals primarily with the mother and only secondarily with the children.

To the question, "Should children be disciplined?" the psychiatrist counseled, "Try to understand the child, and tell him that you understand his problem, but let him know definitely that limitations will be placed upon him."

Comments from some of the women were:

Follow The Footsteps of Great Americans

February is the month of great Americans—Washington, Lincoln, Edison, Lindbergh. . . .

To them and to all outstand-ing American patriots, we wish to pay tribute.

We are proud of you, patriots f our country, molders of our emocratic government.

Often you came to grips with issues which affected the basic structure of our society and our government; you weighed and pondered the dangers which threatened our national tradition of self reliance and individual initiative.

Your work demanded a hard commitment and a dedication; it meant leaving home and fireside to embrace the rigors of the thousand daily frustrations of political life, the calm endurance of the criticism of constituents.

Upon you were imposed the fearsome burdens of judgment and decision on questions which touched the temporal welfare, security and happiness of the whole humanity. Surely for this you needed the gifts of the Holy Spirit and the virtues of Holy Spirit and the virtues of the saints—wisdom, broad vi-sion, moral courage, patience. . .

In legislation you conscientiously sought a universal justice; objectively, you were always mindful of the common good.

You had tasks that were often thankless; you had burdens which must have weighed heav-ily upon your spirit and your souls.

You, our first and founding patriots, conceived the foundations of our national government in labor and in pain. Its allotment of powers and their restrictions, its formula of representation, its system of checks and balances, were as perfectly proportioned as human wisdom could devise in an imperfect world.
You, patriots who have preserved our democracy through the years; you, who have been responsible for our government's survival through the years have met the onslaught of other forms of government; you have pre-served the concept of human dignity and liberty among the nations of the earth.

You, patriots who guide our government at the present time, have a first duty to see that our government's structure is safe guarded and unchanged; you must also preserve peace in honor; safeguard our sovereignty, contain and subdue the tyranny which threatens that peace and sovereignty.

You, who have gone on ahead and are looking down on our country, pray for our leaders of today that they may receive God's wisdom, justice and charity.

Retreat Offers Many Benefits

What do you expect to gain from retreat this year—just a couple of days out of school or the real benefits a retreat of-fers?

Most students realize the importance of the two days of silence and prayer. They know that a great deal of spiritual satisfaction and help can be gained. Why the silence? Silence aids in keeping our minds on the spiritual rather than material things. If you are thinking of will be half neglected. Since only two days are set aside for God, we should give Him the full time.

Keeping the silence between conferences is one of the greatest problems to fight. Sometimes the "Larry Looselips," Gertie Giggles" and "Nellie Nudges" can be instruments of the devil. It takes a great deal of self-control and concentration to avoid these so-called retreat makers.

In third and fourth grades In third and fourth grades we were taught that prayer is "talking to God." Retreat offers an excellent time to find out just what God has planned for us. We know that the only way we can be truly happy is to follow God's plans for us. If our happiness is at stake it's worth asking God about.

Talking over your vocation with the priest is another opportunity offered to you during retreat. He will try to answer any questions you have and give you advice on any special problems you have.

At each conference that the priest gives in Church, he tries to cover general matters of concern to high school students. Sometimes we think we've heard it all before, but it can never hurt us to listen again, then after we leave school it will be more fixed in our minds.

Making a good retreat is up to ou, and to no one else. It can e done!

AND YOU PREJUDICE, COLOR

How many of us chose the nationality or race or religion into which we were born? How many of us had the chance to decide, before we came into the world, whether our skin would be black, or white, or yellow, whether we'd be Jew or Gentile? No one had the privilege to choose the kind of man he wanted to be; hence no one should discriminate against another because of his nationality, race, or religion.

When we first come into the world and while we are young we have no prejudices or bigotry toward others, but as we grow older we seem to take on attitudes which result in differences being looked upon as something wrong, or inferior, peculiar, or a threat. When directed toward the appearance, thoughts or acts of human beings, these attitudes spell out fear, superiority, disrespect, antagonism, and a host of other things scarcely in har-mony with good friendly relamony with good friendly relations.

Do we admit that we are prejudiced? Most people won't, but in almost every community some sort of bigotry exists. Even in Boone where the percentage of Negro, Jewish, Mexican, and Italian population is less than one percent there are certain prejudices that are apparent from time to time. When there was a rumor that many Negro families were going to make their residence in Boone many people were all ready to pack up and leave if they couldn't prevent the influx.

Because of nationality or religion persons have been unable to get jobs for which they are qualified. The practice of making fun of religious practices of some churches and having a number of odious names for people of certain religions or nationalities is quite common.

Yet some people say they aren't prejudiced, when often their attitude toward others is unconsciously cruel. Alleged national or racial qualities are too often the subject of jokes. Why is it necessary to adopt blackfaces for clowning? Patter and songs would both be just as good without the burnt cork—and 'Negro students would be spared the caricaturing.

Students Enjoy Leisure Time

When the cold wave set in, many S.H.H.S. students confined to the indoors, have more time to work on their hobbies.

In the home of the Kramers, Gary, a freshman, and his brother Ron, a sophomore, are busy putting last minute touches on their latest model cars. Gary and Ron have been working on the assembly line since last summer. Their collection now numbers about twenty-four. At the present Gary is working on a 1925 Ford "T" called the "Black Widow;" Ron is just completing a 1944 Ford coupe.

Phil McCoy spends his spare time in the stamp collectors world. For five years Phil has been trading, buying, selling his wares. He has accumulated about 15,000 stamps.

In the winter when frogs are hibernating, Pete Maurer joins the club of philatelists. During a five year period he has approx-imately 2,000 in his collection.

Any one who has any rare coins can interest Dave Myers and Tom Sawyer. These boys are always in the market for a coin deal. Tom's collection which is just getting started, has about two or three-hundred coins in it; David's collection consists of pennies, nickles and dimes.

Those who prefer the comfort of heated buildings go for the indoor sports to fill leisure time. Sharon Shuster, John Garvey, Sue Cooper, and Mark Collison enjoy bowling. Sharon bowls regularly in a league for Cooper Insurance, while John, Sue, and Mark bowl just as a hobby to fill spare time.

Spartans Stumble 65 to 35

The Spartans or sacred meart were handed then that also of the season at the hands of Granger Assumption by a score of 65-35. Poor shooting proved to be the Spartans chief fault. The Spartans could manage to sink only 16% of their shots in the first half, but they came back in the second half with an improved 30%, hitting 8 out of 26 shots. Granger had a considerable lead throughout the entire game leading 12-2 at the end of the first quarter, 27-12 at halftime and 48-20 at the end of the third period.

Junior center, Ron Keller leading the Spartans in the scoring department, netted 6 field goals and 2 free throws, good for 14 points, while Steve Duffy and Dave Leininger stuffed in 9 and 6 points respectively. Granger had 3 starters in double figures—Danti, Geletti, and Spellman who hit 22, 20, and 15 points respectively.
